man to be.

The Theatre we have visited, and it is a gem. By far the largest in the city, it is fitted up and decorated in the most elegant and complete manner. The ceilings and dome are beautifully elaborated by Caratern, who designed the cranectation for the Captiol. Mr. Charles Gets is the scenic artist, and his skill is evidenced in every corner of the Theatre.

The orchestra is selected with great care, and is under the leaderable of John K. Goodall, who originally imagurated the old National Theatre upon the same spot, under Mr. Marshall.

Everything seems in be done to make the Theatra at once elegant and convenient, and to turnish the public with a place of amusement and a dramatic company thoroughly worthy of

The Indian Department in the Patent Office was visited last Tuesday by a deputation from the Potowattomis tribe of Indians of Kansas. The came here for the purpose of presenting certain complaints which they had to make. There are twelve of them, four chiefs and eight braves, two of whom dreased in all the geograms and fancy costume peculiar to that strange race. They were accompanied by Rr. Rose, the Indian agent for the Uovernment in that runtry, who acts as interpreter for the party. It is a strange race. They were accompanied by Rr. White some of the Christian churches observed this week in commemoration of the sufferings of Chrisi, the Jews observe this week in commemoration of their deliverance from Egyptian byrdage. By turning to the twelfth chapter of the book of Exodus, our Christian readers will see the reason for, and the manner of, this ancient Hebrew observance.

At the institution of the Passover, every householder was required to kill a lamb and sprinkle the blood on the two side poets and on the upper part of the house in which the flesh of the animal was to be eaten after having been roasted. The flosh was required to be sat on the supper part of the house in which the flesh of the animal was to be eaten after having been roasted. The flosh was required to be sat on the supper part of the house upon which the blood of the lamb was found should be exempt from plague. The penalty for the non-observance of the fast was the amitting of the entire of the supper supper that the present early though, so far as the observance of the fast was the amitting of the entire of the fast was the first-horn both of man and beast. The Passover was required to be kept throughout their generations, and by an ordinance forever. Those old forms and coremonies, however, are nearly exited at the present day; though, so far as the observance of the fast of unleavened bread is concerned, it is very generally observed. The history of the unleavened bread was the haste in which the 600,000 largelites left the land of Pharcash after the destroying angel had passed over the land, having taken their dough of the substantial the substantial and the transfer of the passon over the land, having taken their dough of the land, having taken their dough of the land, having taken their dough of the land of Pharcash after the destroying angel had passed over the land, having taken their dough of the land, having taken their dou

Still Carrying Them Off.

We sincerely hope that the President will not delay the signing of the smanoipation bill longer than necessary, as every day adds to the number which will be deemed to the degraded condition of slavery who coght to be breaunder the operation of this bill. Surely, if freedom is a bleasing, it ought to be bactowed on the greatest number possible by this bill. Every hour commits an additional fellow being to slavery, as caused like the following occur in about that proportion.

On the lath instant, Joseph L. Norrie, long a waiter in this city, was called for by his owner from Alexandria, and taken away to word the effect of the District emancipation bill.
